Hey! I'm Elián, a Full-Stack Developer. I've been fascinated by computers, hardware and all the IT stuff since I was a kid. People call me creative and I love to mix that creativity with tech to build different solutions. I'm drawn to the artistic side of tech – the pursuit of new ideas, the refinement of my skills and the impact I can make through my work. I'm also someone who loves to explore alternative ways and find new approaches to solve problems. That's why I'm always looking to learn, grow and push the limits of what's possible.

My first contact with programming was when I was 8 years old, creating games in RPG Maker XP. Over time, I grew up maintaining this hobby, making games with RPG Maker MV using self-made plugins in JS and developing games in Unity with C#. Nowadays, I keep game development as a hobby, while focusing on creating innovative things with the technologies I work with. However, the influence of game development and user experience continues to have an indirect impact on the projects I create.
